ROCK FALLS - Every year about this time, the city's Public Works panel starts planning for the next round of roads projects. But this year, it will be done against a backdrop of unusual circumstances.

Public Works took up the roads and sidewalks conversation Thursday, reviewing what remains from last year's list, and trying to determine whether new projects could become a bigger priority.

"There are sidewalks that have dropped near the high school, and many of them downtown are full of cracks," Chairman Daehle Reitzel said.
